

Chilli and Liquid Packing Machine

1. The automatic liquid and chilli packing machine can complete a series of work, such as metering, bag making, filling, sealing, printing batch number, production date, validity period, counting and so on in the process of packing automatically.
2. Independent innovation technology, man-machine interface control system, humanized design, high degree of automation, fault alarm, failure stop, automatic diagnosis, automatic counting, automatic display and packing number, simple and safe operation and convenient maintenance

3. Wide range of convenience and different packing specifications can be realized by changing moulds.
4. Record and display the class output, cumulative output, the temperature of the equipment during thermal sealing, and record the running time without interruption. After the number of packages set per product is completed, the machine stops automatically.
5. The intelligent temperature controller has two ways to control the temperature of the horizontal and vertical seals. It has good thermal balance and is suitable for all kinds of packaging materials.
6. When the advanced photoelectric tracking system is used, the packaging material of colored standard is packed, the integrity of the trademark pattern is retained, the photoelectric abnormal alarm is used to reduce the waste of the packaging material.
7. Seal the unique embedded design, heat sealing structure, low noise, clear seal, strong sealing.
8. The contact parts of the machine and the material are all 304 stainless steel, to ensure that the material is no pollution in the process, the machine is clean and convenient, and it fully meets the requirements of the drug GMP and the food safety certification.
